HEROES' HOTLINE

Dear Superman and Batman,

I really like your magazine because you have lots of interesting pages, like the Daily Planet and Draw Your Favorite DC Comics Hero. I hope you put a games page in your magazine to make it more fun. The front covers are excellent.

Destin Carter
Thunder Bay, Ontario, Canada

We are always looking for ways to make Superman & Batman Magazine more fun, Destin. In this issue, you'll find three new puzzle pages. We hope you like them—and good luck!

Dear Superman and Batman,

I was furious when I read the Daily Planet story, "Batman Reveals New, Darker Side." I like Batman the way he is. This new look may be OK sometime next century, but I don't think people are ready for it now. It would make me feel better if it were Batman's enemy instead. It would also make me feel better if you put Catwoman in the next issue.

Amanda Tabey
Eliot, ME

As you may remember from the Daily Planet in our fall issue, Bruce Wayne is back as Batman. Hope you feel better now, Amanda!

Dear Superman and Batman,

First of all, I would just like to say that I don't like your magazine—I love it! My favorite part is The Hero File. I'm a big-time collector of both Superman and Batman comics, so this magazine is perfect for me. My mom ordered it without telling me. One day we got home from a vacation, and I found it in the mailbox. I loved it! By the way, I was wondering if you could do a Hero File on the Flash. Keep up the good work.

Jason Sigler
Chanute, KS

The Flash was featured in The Hero File in Superman & Batman Magazine #2.

We like to think of this as your magazine. Let us know what you think of it by sending your super-hero questions and suggestions to Superman & Batman Magazine, DC Comics, 1325 Avenue of the Americas, New York, NY 10019.

Dear Superman and Batman,

Many people like the Daily Planet. I do too. I would also like to say that I have made a switch. My favorite super-hero was Superman, but since you had that comics story with Shazam! [Superman & Batman Magazine #4], I'm going with Captain Marvel all the way!

I'd also like to suggest something. How about reviewing video games with DC characters in them?

Ian Sharp
Red Bank, TN

Dear Superman and Batman,

I think you should have a page in your magazine for readers' drawings, so people can see other readers' drawings every issue. Other than that, your magazine is great! I love your pullouts. I love your whole magazine!

Obed Martinez
LaBelle, FL

Obed, your wish is our command: check out Draw Your Favorite DC Comics Hero in this and every issue!

Dear Superman and Batman,

We've always been fans of Batman and Superman. We have fabulous cartoons of Superman at home, and we like the Batman cartoon when it comes on TV. We also like Robin very much.

Debbie and Sabrina Brown
Lakeview, AK

On June 21, 1994, Neal Pozner died of AIDS-related illnesses. As Group Editor-Creative Services for DC Comics, Neal was involved in the creation and development of this magazine at every stage. HEROES' HOTLINE

Dear Superman and Batman,

I just finished reading issue #4, and I thought it was great! I especially enjoyed The Hero File and the comic featuring Shazam!

I would like it if you had more games and puzzles in your magazine. I also wish that you had three comics in every issue, one with Superman, one with Batman, and one starring another hero from The Hero File. In future Hero Files, I would enjoy reading about Supergirl and Green Lantern. I would also like to know more about Lois & Clark: The New Adventures of Superman.

On a scale of 1 to 10, your magazine is definitely an 11!

Josh Phelps
Lexington, TN

Hang in there, Josh, because there's more great stuff to come.

Dear Superman and Batman,

I was wondering whether Doomsday, the creature that killed Superman, was going to be in an issue of your magazine.

Justin Moore
Mesilla, NM

Doomsday appears in "The Doomsday Solution" on page 10!

Dear Superman and Batman,

I have a very good suggestion (I think so, at least). You should make your pullout posters white on the back. I have every issue and I put up every poster from your magazine. When I take out the posters, I also take out valuable parts of the magazine, even though I read them before I take out the posters. So I hope that you make the backs of your pullouts white.

Allen Moore
Rochester, MN

We'd love to accommodate you, Allen, but if we made the backs of the pullouts white, we would have to cut two pages of comics or stories. Sorry!

Dear Superman and Batman,

I just received my second issue of your magazine, and I think it's excellent. It keeps me busy, and I can't wait for the next issue!

Gary O'Neal
Brooklyn, NY

Dear Superman and Batman,

Your comics are awesome! I liked Batman and Robin in the fourth issue. I know lots of superheroes' secret identities because I looked at that issue's martial arts page.

Calvin Booker, Jr.
Aurora, CO

Dear Superman and Batman,

Give me more Superman! I really like Batman, but I really, really like Superman comics.

Raymond Medrano
Phoenix, AZ

Relax, Raymond. We've got more Superman comics for you, starting on page 10.

Dear Superman and Batman,

I just got my first issue of Superman & Batman Magazine. I loved the whole thing, especially The Hero File. I wish the magazine could be longer, and I think it's great that the writers put their names down so that they can be recognized.

Lisa Smith
Wynnes, AK

It takes a lot of people to put this magazine together, Lisa, and we make sure everyone gets credit for their contributions.

Ninth-Graders Ask: IS BATMAN A HERO?

By Phil Richards

Can Batman be called a hero? Ninth-graders in New York City's Beacon School wanted to know, so they met with three Batman writers: Alan Grant, Doug Moench, and Dennis O'Neil. The class had spent much of the year discussing heroes, from Odysseus, featured in the ancient Greek epic The Odyssey, to more modern characters such as American folk hero Paul Bunyan, as well as Batman and Superman.

The class had already concluded that heroes are "flawed but magnificent people," said Jonathan Goldman, the class's teacher. Alan Grant agreed with that idea, saying, "Batman is a much purer hero than many other super-heroes because Bruce Wayne made himself into Batman. It's his brains and his courage and his athletic ability that make him Batman, not some super-power or weaponry."

Despite the Dark Knight's methods, which may be considered excessive, the writers all agreed that Batman is in fact a hero. His heroism goes back to the day he swore to fight crime, added O'Neil, who said, "Batman is obsessed with justice because of what happened to his parents. Every time he catches a criminal, he symbolically avenges his parents' death and protects others."

In the end, the class decided that, like Odysseus, Paul Bunyan, and so many other figures of myth and legend, Batman is very much a hero for our time.

GREEN LANTERN

Kyle Rayner is the last in a long line of heroes called Green Lantern. His ring is the most powerful weapon in the universe. Anything he can imagine, his ring can create. Not bad for a guy who seemed to be going nowhere fast.

Before he became Green Lantern, Kyle wasn't doing much with his life. He was an artist, but his career wasn't going too well. His girlfriend, Alex, thought Kyle could do more with his life, and was pushing him to try harder at his work.

One night, Kyle was catching a breath of fresh air in an alleyway behind a dance club when a little blue man in a red outfit appeared from nowhere. He handed Kyle a green, glowing ring and told him to use its powers wisely, then he disappeared!

As soon as Kyle put the ring on his finger, he found he was wearing the costume of one of Earth's greatest super-heroes: Green Lantern. He quickly jumped into action and went to see...Alex.

Knowing Kyle's impulsive personality, Alex tried to explain the responsibilities that came with such power. She helped Kyle realize that he had a lot to learn in order to be a good Green Lantern.

Before he could follow her advice, however, tragedy struck with the appearance of Major Force, a villain who wanted Green Lantern's power. Major Force didn't find Kyle, but he found Alex instead. By the time Kyle arrived, Alex was dead, and Kyle realized that being a super-hero wasn't just fun and games; it was serious. Kyle brought Alex's murderer to justice, but wasn't sure he wanted to be Green Lantern anymore.

Fortunately, a hero named Alan Scott found Kyle before he could quit. Alan had been the Earth's first Green Lantern many years ago, and he told Kyle about The Green Lantern Corps.

The Green Lantern Corps was founded thousands of years ago by The Guardians of the Universe, a race of very wise and powerful little blue men who lived for thousands of years. They created the organization known as the Green Lantern Corps to protect the universe. Each sector of the universe was protected by a Green Lantern armed with a power ring. There were over 3,000 Green Lanterns, each with his or her or its own ring.

One of the greatest Green Lanterns, Hal Jordan, turned against the Guardians and destroyed them and the entire Corps. The last act of the only remaining Guardian was to find someone capable of carrying on the tradition of the Green Lanterns. He found Kyle.

With his ring Green Lantern can do virtually anything. He can fly at super-speed, survive the vacuum of space, move mountains—in fact, he can literally make or do anything he can think of. The ring is activated by the ringbearer's willpower; the stronger the willpower, the more powerful the ring's abilities.

Kyle is the last Green Lantern. He has moved to New York City's Greenwich Village and joined a team of young super-heroes called The New Titans. Kyle isn't fully aware of all the ring can and cannot do. But he is determined to do whatever it takes to become worthy of the name Green Lantern.

Major Force: A merciless killer, Major Force's entire body is coated with an impenetrable metal that also gives him super-strength and the ability to blast his enemies with a power beam.

Parallax: Parallax is one of the most powerful villains in the universe. He was previously known as Hal Jordan, a Green Lantern who went insane after his home town of Coast City, California, was destroyed. Parallax intended to remake the universe, but was defeated by a combined force of all the heroes in the DC Universe. He was caught in an explosion triggered by Kyle that destroyed the Guardians' home planet of Oa. It is unknown if Parallax is still alive.

The Search For Sivana

Featuring Captain Marvel!

The pyramid tomb of the ancient wizard Shazam seemed like easy pickings to the evil Dr. Sivana, Captain Marvel's old enemy. Just as Sivana was about to get away, Captain Marvel appeared in the sky. Sivana quickly grabbed the wizard's treasure and ran, shouting, "There's a bomb in the pyramid, you Big Red Cheese! You can't catch me until you disarm it!" Guide Captain Marvel into the pyramid through the opening at the top, and help him find his way through the maze to take care of the bomb and still capture Sivana. Watch out for dead ends! If you end up trapped in the maze, you can peek at the bottom of the page to reveal the secret path.

JURASSIC PARK

UNDER NEW MANAGEMENT.

T. Rex is back—along with a dinosaur population that actually multiplies while you play!

The devious BioSyn Corp. has come to snag Dr. Hammond's cloning research — and they'll stop at nothing to get it!

BioSyn commandos, greedy geneticists, flame-throwing engineers, Raptors, Spitters, Pterodactyls ...It's war, man, war!

What'dya think, they'd just die off?

WRONG. This time the dinosaurs own the park. And there are tons of them — literally. Including those too nasty for the big screen.

And guess who gets to go in and play Mr. Ice Age...We'll give you the weapons, you do the rest.

Oh, and one more thing: It's been a year since "the attractions" have had a really good meal.

Enjoy your visit!
